Pitt bomb threats came from Ireland, cops allege

A man residing in Dublin, Ireland, was indicted on Wednesday for sending more than 40 e-mailed bomb threats to the University of Pittsburgh, which prompted the school to evacuate parts of its campus more than 100 times, federal prosecutors said.

Adam Stuart Busby, 64, was charged with 17 counts of wire fraud, 16 counts of maliciously conveying false information and two counts of international extortion.

Busby is currently in custody in Ireland.

"I am very relieved," University of Pittsburgh chancellor Mark Nordenberg said.

But Nordenberg said the threats might have scared off prospective students since they occurred during a peak application period.

In April, after receiving 10 bomb threats in three weeks, the school offered a $50,000 reward for information leading to the capture of whomever was responsible.

A week later, the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette received an e-mail, allegedly sent by Busby, saying: "Tell police — a bomb is at Pitt chancellor Nordenberg's house on Devonshire Street, Pittsburgh. Nordenberg only has to withdraw the $50,000 bounty, to end the threats against Pitt. He has refused. The offer still stands." REUTERS

CJC employee charged with rape of girl

The District Attorney's Office yesterday announced charges against Jean Casseus, 48, an employee of the Criminal Justice Center who was taken into custody July 20. He faces a rape charge and a slew of others for allegedly raping a 15-year-old girl while impersonating a police officer. He is currently free on $25,000 cash bail. METRO

Road rage ends in arrest

An Allentown man was charged yesterday with allegedly impersonating a police officer and pulling over a woman last month for driving too slow, according to a report from The Morning Call. Police said Luis Collazo-Figueroa, 24, became upset with a female motorist because she did not drive quickly enough out of a McDonald's parking lot at 7 p.m. on July 28. He allegedly yelled at her and the two argued.

About two blocks away, he pulled out a blue emergency light and placed it on the top of his Ford Crown Victoria, which looks like an older model police vehicle, according to investigators.

The woman reportedly said Figueroa pretended to talk to someone on a walkie-talkie and told her, "I work for the police." But when she told him she was dialing 911, he allegedly fled. METRO

Unidentified woman fell on tracks at 2 a.m., two hours after gates should have been locked SEPTA still investigating how gates left open

A 30-year-old woman who fell onto the tracks at a SEPTA subway station early yesterday morning before being hit by a train got in because the station was unlocked, SEPTA officials said.

The woman, whose name was not released, entered the Lombard-South station around 2:15 a.m., surveillance video shows, SEPTA spokeswoman Jerri Williams said. The woman fell onto the third rail and laid there for hours until being hit by a train around 5 a.m. An autopsy yesterday confirmed that she was electrocuted, Williams said.

Although SEPTA did not release the video out of compassion for the woman's family, a Metro reporter viewed the footage, which shows the woman, who appeared to be under the influence, on the platform for about four minutes. On the video, the woman sits down on a bench and rocks back slightly before standing up and walking to a concrete pillar. The woman rubs on the pillar for about a minute before taking two steps and falling sharply off the platform.

Williams said the station is normally locked down by transit police around 12:30 a.m. after the last train, but Wednesday night, officers were responding to two other incidents, including a copper theft at the Wayne Junction rail yard.

"These officers had been pulled away from regular duty and had not yet been able to get back to close up the stations," Williams said.

When asked whether the agency was liable for the incident, Williams said, "That's going to be part of the investigation. Again, we have officers that are assigned to that zone, but they're also assigned to handle other criminal activity."

The incident will be reviewed by SEPTA's safety department and its new police chief, who will start Monday, Williams said.

Busy week on transit system

It has been a busy week for SEPTA safety inspectors.

Early yesterday, a pedestrian was hit by a Route 18 bus near the Fox Chase loop in Northeast Philadelphia. His condition was unknown. On Monday, a 58-year-old woman was killed and 13 people injured in a crash between a car and a Route 55 bus in the city's Ogontz section. Additionally, a man was injured Friday after touching overhead wires while standing on top of a Regional Rail train at the Doylestown station. He suffered burns, but his condition is also unknown. The woman who died yesterday was not identified by SEPTA and city police said they did not have her identity.

Judge: Turzai comments were 'disturbing'

As far as allegations of partisan motivation in passing the voter ID law, the judge who ruled in the case yesterday acknowledged that House Majority Leader Michael Turzai's infamous comments that the law would allow Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney to win the state in November are "disturbing" and "tendentious," but noted they weren't made on the House floor.

The judge concluded that his opinion was based strictly on a factual analysis of law.

"Petitioners' counsel did an excellent job of 'putting a face' to those burdened by the voter ID requirement," he wrote. "At the end of the day, however, I do not have the luxury of deciding this issue based on my sympathy for the witnesses."

The ruling is only the first battle of the ongoing war, as the petitioners plan to appeal. METRO/AW

Sandusky reportedly working on autobiography in prison

It appears that convicted pedophile Jerry Sandusky has found to pass the time in jail as he awaits sentencing.

A television station outside Pittsburgh, WJAC-TV in Johnstown, first reported Tuesday that Sandusky is writing his second book with the help of his wife Dottie. The former Penn State coach authored "Touched: The Jerry Sandusky Story" in 2001.

The report, citing unnamed sources, says that Sandusky is writing his version of the events that rocked Penn State University and led to the firing of several officials, including coach Joe Paterno. Jerry Sandusky and his wife were reportedly corresponding so much on the book that Dottie had her correspondence privileges revoked.

It is unclear how the book will be published or what it will be titled. As the report points out, Sandusky could not profit off the book because convicted felons are prohibited from profiting for writing about their crimes. Any potential proceeds to Dottie Sandusky could, however, help defer legal expenses.

Sandusky is scheduled to be sentenced in September. Last week, the U.S. Postal Inspection Service said it was investigating whether Sandusky shared child pornography with others, although Sandusky's lawyer denied the claims.

Fight against Pa. voter ID law is not over yet

Loss yesterday in Commonwealth Court to have legislation overturned not end of road, opposition says State Supreme Court appeal planned

▶ Are you a Pennsylvania resident who wants to vote? Don't forget to bring your ID.

A judge yesterday denied a petition for a preliminary injunction that would have halted the controversial voter ID law, in which those who want to cast a ballot must first show valid photo identification.

"I just can't believe it," 93-year-old Viviette Applewhite of Germantown, one of the plaintiffs named in the petition, said in a statement. "Too many people have fought for the right to vote to have it taken away like this. All I want is to be able to vote this November like I always have. This law is just ridiculous."

The petition was brought to court by a coalition of civil rights groups who argued the law, Act 18, would disproportionately burden low-income citizens and the elderly and posed an unconstitutional, partisan-driven attempt at restricting the rights of those demographics to vote.

Commonwealth Court Judge Robert Simpson found that the inconvenience of gathering the required documents and trekking to PennDOT is not substantial for "the vast supermajority of registered voters," nor is it restrictive enough to pose a constitutional violation.

Quoted

"I sincerely hope the Supreme Court will right this terrible wrong and will overturn this decision in time for the November elections. The commonwealth's highest court should see what the rest of the nation so plainly does — that this law is a scam."

FRANK DERMODY, PA. HOUSE DEMOCRATIC LEADER

He said that the state's rationale — to ensure public confidence in elections' security and integrity and reduce the risk of voter fraud — were "relevant, neutral and non-discriminatory justifications."

The bondage scene: It's now more than mommy porn fodder

After the sensational story of a hot-blooded breakup between a young Manhattan sex slave and her high-powered CEO master — coupled with the popularity of "Fifty Shades of Grey" — curiosity is on the upswing about New York City's underground fetish world.

And it's prompting those who live it to speak out.

The city plays host to dozens of sex clubs, both public and private, visited by thousands of people looking to quench their sexual desires. Though the mainstream perception of BDSM (bondage, dominance, sadism, masochism) and S&M (sadomasochism) is a sexual free-for-all, those who practice it say a relationship formed within these communities is just like any other.

"People fail to realize that BDSM is just a microcosm of the population as a whole," Guy Sanders, spokesperson for The Eulenspiegel Society, a BDSM education and support group, told Metro. "It's kind of like how being gay was years ago. Because people have formulated their own opinions about you and what you are, it's not prudent to allow your sexual history to come out."

And many more Americans have engaged in some type of BDSM sex play than one may realize: According to the 1993 Janus Report on Sexual Behavior, 14 percent of men and 11 percent of women in the U.S. have experienced a sado-masochist sexual experience.

The fetish sex scene is very much alive and well.

"It's kind of like how being gay was years ago. Because people have formulated their own opinions about you and what you are, it's not prudent to allow your sexual history to come out."
GUY SANDERS

But don't expect those involved in such relationships to be very forthcoming about it. The stigma that surrounds alternative sexuality makes many of those who practice it keep it under wraps.

"One in three people who are kinky are persecuted. That could be losing a job or losing child custody to having troubles with your family," Susan Wright from the National Coalition for Sexual Freedom said.

And she applauds books like the "Fifty Shades" for making bondage sex more accepted — or at least, easier to experiment.

"[Fifty Shades] has been wonderful publicity for the BDSM community," Wright said. "I'm hoping ... that it will become tolerated that people have kinky elements to their sexual relationships."

BDSM and S&M relationships can be monogamous or polyamorous, meaning couples either swing together or both partners share other lovers. And insiders said plenty of solid relationships and marriages exist among community members.

"It's not all whips and chains and sleeping around," Sanders said, "There is a love and commitment in these relationships."

CASSANDRA GARRISON
cassandra.garrison@metro.us

Bondage breakup in the spotlight

In a real-life "Fifty Shades of Grey" scenario, Frankie Santiago, 27, submitted to daily whippings from her 53-year-old lover, Edward Sonderling.

That is, until Santiago discovered that Sonderling had recruited a new apprentice to replace her and, in response, sent him more than 40 text messages over a 12-day period. She was arrested Monday and charged with stalking, according to the Post.

BDSM-based relationships are not immune to jealousy or messy breakups, but bondage community members say they hope the media attention to this case will combat stigma.

"I don't see any difference between the vanilla community and this community in terms of what people are looking for, or in terms of whether or not you're stable," said Mazie, a Staten Island-based fetish community member.

Naive online daters turn

One day, Sharon's and Catherine's online dates, called "Frank" and "Marc," asked them to finally meet in person, but not before one last favor: going to Argentina to pick up some sensitive documents.

The two women eventually agreed, thinking their dream had finally come true.

However, the documents, hidden in a secret compartment of their luggage, turned out instead to be cocaine.

That's how Sharon Mae Armstrong, 55, former deputy chief executive of the Maori Language Commission from New Zealand, and Catherine Blackhawk, 49, an American nurse, suddenly and unknowingly became the final links in a drug trafficking chain.

Astonished, they ended up behind bars in the same federal prison on the outskirts of Buenos Aires, in April and June 2011, respectively.

Their cases reveal that dating deceits — which rose by 150 percent in 2011 alone, fraud protection agency Iovation reveals — are moving beyond the simple take-the-money-and-run scheme.

PRESIDENT OF THE ARGENTINE ANTI-DRUGS ASSOCIATION

"Cartels are looking for people who clearly can't focus properly to realize what kind of business they have been thrown into," Claudio Izaguirre, president of the Argentine Anti-Drugs Association, told Metro.

"People like Sharon are thrown into the fray with a luggage where the cocaine is easily detectable; she is just a decoy, a scapegoat. The real mules are behind her, managing to get through while the attention falls on her," he added.

In January of this year, a third person fell into the same cyber-trap and got caught at Buenos Aires airport: Paul Howard Frampton, 69, a distinguished professor of physics and astronomy based at University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Frampton has said he was lured into meeting a woman he thought he had been chatting with on the Internet, Czech-born lingerie model Denise Milani. He was given luggage to carry by someone claiming to be Milani's intermediary; the case had 2 kilograms of cocaine inside.

▶ If you're looking for love online, be careful of who's out there.

Blackhawk, Frampton was perceived to be vulnerable and financially secure.

Julieta Lacroze, Sharon's lawyer from Buenos Aires-based law firm Estudio Durrieu, believes they are just the tip of an iceberg, but admits it is hard to find exact figures on the dating scam trend.

"It is easy for criminal organizations — they just have to sit down and chat," she said. "Three months of work via the Internet, and that's it. For 5 kilos of cocaine, it's a fairly good deal."

Normally, dating website rip-offs tend to go unreported due to victims feeling embarrassed or humiliated.

The unwitting drug mules detained in Argentina now fight a battle behind bars to raise awareness about their plight.

How to dig your own grave

Being a professional cyber-love scammer requires an outrageously creative brain. Investigators believe that the organization that tricked Sharon used her own money to pay for the whole operation: In more than four months of a virtual relationship with "Frank," Sharon agreed to send him $20,000 in different installments via Western Union.

"Every time, he had a different excuse," her lawyer, Lacroze, pointed out.

"Who in Argentina would ever accept to send this much money to a stranger? No one."

Nigerian and Russian criminal organizations are infamous to experts and drug enforcement agencies around the world. Websites like Romancescam.com are dedicated to raising awareness over the issue and help people detect their scammers before it becomes too late.

USED CARS as low as $999 FRED BEANS REPEATS HISTORIC USED CAR SALE

Limerick, PA – Fred Beans, CEO and Founder of the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships located in Limerick PA, has announced a ONE DAY SALE on Saturday, August 18th at 9:00AM, where pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. This sale is being held due to overwhelming public demand.

Cars will be clearly marked, so come early for the best selection. This is a ONE DAY ONLY sale designed to get the local community driving again.

Fred Beans' pre-owned inventory levels need to be reduced to make room for shipments of new models arriving daily. As a result, all 3 Fred Beans Limerick locations are selling these overstocked pre-owned vehicles to the public at drastic discounts in an attempt to clear excess inventory.

In addition to this huge variety of pre-owned vehicles, the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships in Limerick features new Chevrolet, Nissan and Kia vehicles.

Fred Beans believes reviving the economy starts at home, and changing things locally will lead to changing things nationally.

In addition to the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships' extra inventory, additional vehicles have been acquired at incredible prices from various banks, repossession companies, auto auctions, credit unions, lease companies, and rental companies for this sale.

The sale will make pre-owned vehicles available for as low as $999, prices not normally offered to the general public. According to Fred Beans, "We want to give our customers a reason to believe in the local economy again. Someone has to look out for their best interests."

Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM to inspect the entire inventory and find the car that is right for them. Every vehicle will be cleaned, detailed, and fully prepared for instant delivery. On the evening of August 17th after close of business, Mr. Beans and his team will mark the special sale price on each and every vehicle.

Because Fred Beans' customers are feeling the credit crunch right now, the Fred Beans Automotive Group has given the dealerships' financing managers the resources necessary to get most customers' credit approved on the spot.

The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships has $10,000,000 in lending power, the result of over 50 years of strong relationships with the area's leading lenders. This means that customers with "less than perfect" credit history can have their credit approved and drive a quality pre-owned car, truck, or SUV home by lunchtime on Saturday.

Even if a customer's credit report shows a bankruptcy, divorce, tax lien, slow payment history, missed payment, or repossession, or if a customer is a first time buyer, Fred Beans may get them approved.

This special ONE DAY ONLY sale will be held at all 3 Fred Beans Limerick locations this Saturday, August 18th, at 9:00AM.

Pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM for the start of inspection. Incredible sale prices, starting as low as $999, will be posted no later than 8:00AM. All vehicles will be sold on a first come, first serve basis. The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships is expecting a high volume of customers for this sale, so be sure to reserve your spot early.

Customers wishing to trade in a vehicle are asked to bring their title or payment book for immediate delivery. Fred Beans will even pay off your trade-in in full, no matter how much you still owe on it.

Most of these surplus pre-owned vehicles will get sent directly to auto auctions for liquidation. So, if anyone has been thinking about purchasing a good, clean, dependable pre-owned car, truck, van or sport utility vehicle, do not miss this special ONE DAY ONLY sale.

Courtesy transportation available from all local airports, train stations and bus depots.

Metro's Monica Weymouth shares her take on the world of gossip @monicaatmetro monica.weymouth@metro.us

Pattinson dodging breakup questions

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

▶ This is just the way we like our Pattinson: pouty and bed-headed.

With his latest film, "Cosmopolis," set to hit theaters Friday, Robert Pattinson — who has never been one to talk about his personal life — has been at the mercy of the media. He eased into things Monday with "The Daily Show," where Jon Stewart playfully offered him a pint of breakup Ben & Jerry's before obediently asking him about the film that no one cared about.

But "Good Morning America" host George Stephanopoulos wasn't about to let dignity get in his way yesterday morning. After Pattinson didn't voluntarily offer any details about how he's coping after the Kristen Stewart cheating scandal, Stephanopoulos pressed, "What do you want your fans to know about what's going on in your personal life?" Pattinson finally offered some insight: "I'd like my fans to know that Cinnamon Toast Crunch is just 130 calories."

We're pretty sure this is as close as we're ever going to get to eating breakfast with Robert Pattinson. And we'll take it — even if he does pour a skimpy little bowl of Cinnamon Toast Crunch.

Aniston's rocking a major rock

Jennifer Aniston has been hiding her engagement ring, but that won't stop us from talking about it. According to Life & Style, fiance Justin Theroux is significantly poorer this week.

"It's a huge emerald-cut diamond," a "friend" of the couple tells the magazine of the 8-carat rock. "It's a rectangle with tapered diamond baguettes on the sides."

We already feel creepy talking about this, so sure, let's go for broke: Angelina Jolie is wearing a similarly cut engagement ring from Aniston's ex, Brad Pitt.

God save the trashy cousin

Kate Middleton's cousin, Katrina Darling, graces the cover of September's Playboy. While the burlesque dancer — who was paid a six-figure sum for the eight-page pictorial — doesn't have the face of Kate or the rear view of Pippa, she is willing to lay naked on a sheepskin rug and say things like this: "Burlesque is a platform for me to explore these kinds of things. The more into it the audience is, the more into it I am."

▶ Katrina Darling's curtsey requires a little cropping.

The feed ...

▶ Checking in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

@ActuallyNPH (Neil Patrick Harris)
Bret Easton Ellis thinks gay actors can't play straight roles. Totally unrelated, I thought Christian Bale was amazing in "Welsh Psycho."

@taylorswift13
Went to get coffee today-opened my change purse. Sea shells fell out. Barista goes "Sorry, we only take cash or credit." So there's that.

@SteveMartinToGo
There must be a joke in my tweet SOMEWHERE.

@Joan_Rivers
Jennifer Aniston is a lot like those shoppers lined up at 4am on Black Friday. She can't wait to race down the aisle.

Talking points

This makes you feel gross, right?

Nearly 20 years later, Jean-Claude Van Damme confirms that yes, he did in fact cheat on his then-wife, Darcy LaPier, with singer Kylie Minogue while filming "Street Fighter." according to the Guardian.

"Yes, yes, yes. It happened," Van Damme tells the newspaper. "It would be abnormal not to have had an affair, she's so beautiful and she was there in front of me every day with a beautiful smile, simpatico, so charming." As for a more detailed recollection? "You should ask her," he says. "She'll have a better memory. I'm 51 years old. Do you know how much I was punched in the face on 'The Expendables'?"

Rashida Jones apologizes to John Travolta

Rashida Jones has taken to Twitter to apologize for remarks she made about John Travolta in an interview. While talking to Spinningplatters.com, Jones suggested that the time is right for a big movie star to come out of the closet as gay. "A movie star. Like John Travolta? Come out," she said.

"Come on. How many masseurs have to come forward? Let's do this." Travolta has been plagued of late by a flurry of lawsuits from male spa and hotel workers claiming inappropriate sexual behavior on the part of the star. "Made a thoughtless comment about John Travolta," Jones tweeted this week, rethinking her comments. "I sincerely apologize. Nobody's personal life is my business."

Philly gets its geek on

This weekend, the Philadelphia Geek Awards will honor the obsessed among us, from crafty hackers to video-game developers to renegade opera companies

MICHAELANGELO ILAGAN

▶ Geekadelphia co-founders Eric Smith and Tim Quirino will honor 2012's biggest geeks on Friday.

On Oscar night, the stars shine while the technical wizards who make them look like action heroes or monster slayers are squeezed into a five-minute montage. At the Grammys, rock stars hog the spotlight while the knob-twiddlers who cover up their missed notes remain in the shadows.

Eric Smith and Tim Quirino, co-founders of local blog Geekadelphia, devised the Philadelphia Geek Awards in 2011 to honor some of those behind-the-curtain talents. "You always hear about local establishments winning awards," says Smith. "What about the people building the marketing campaigns? You hear about games being honored at big conferences — but if the developers are local, why isn't anyone in the city recognizing them?"

On Friday night, those oversights will be remedied at the second-annual Geek Awards, a black-tie affair where awards will be given for categories like Hacker, Viral Project and Indie Game Developer of the Year.

Smith defines a geek as "someone who is incredibly passionate about a specific niche interest: games, comics, science, social media." The Geek Awards nominees reflect local activity in each of those categories. Nominees range from the Philadelphia Opera Company for its "Pop-Up Opera" series to Philly Tech Week to NPR's "Fresh Air."

"Amazing things happen all the time in Philadelphia's geek community," says Quirino. "Most of the time they fall under the radar of mainstream news, and this is our way of making those achievements and initiatives known."

10 REASONS GET TO THE MOVIES THIS WEEKEND

Must-see

1 'The Expendables 2' Although no longer the director, Sylvester Stallone once again leads an ensemble cast of some of the biggest action stars from the past three decades (Jason Statham, Bruce Willis, Jean-Claude Van Damme, to name a few) in this testosterone-fueled romp about a group of world-class mercenaries. Chuck Norris and Arnold Schwarzenegger (reprising the role he took during his "Governator" days) also make appearances.

MARY CYBULSKI

2 'ParaNorman' In the tradition of quirky, supernatural children's films comes "ParaNorman," a stop-motion flick about Norman, a boy who can speak to ghosts and is tasked with saving his town from an uprising of the dead. Chris Butler, who also served in the art departments of "Corpse Bride" and "Coraline," directs the movie.

3 'Sparkle' This film stars Whitney Houston — in her last performance on the big screen before her death — as the overbearing Emma, a single mother raising Sparkle (Jordin Sparks) and two other daughters who dream of stardom as a singing trio. But Emma's own previous fame as a singer and the three sisters' growing popularity threaten to tear the family apart.

4 'The Bourne Legacy' The "Bourne" franchise gets yet another installment, this one starring budding action star Jeremy Renner as the new protagonist, deadly government operative Aaron Cross.

5 'The Campaign' Incumbent North Carolina Congressman Cam Brady (Will Ferrell) receives a challenge from corporate puppet Marty Huggins (Zach Galifianakis) for re-election.

6 'Hope Springs' This dramedy stars Meryl Streep and Tommy Lee Jones as a couple struggling to find intimacy in their marriage.

7 'Total Recall' Colin Farrell stars as lowly factory worker Douglas Quaid, who uses Rekall in order to escape his mundane life. However, the procedure malfunctions and Quaid questions what is real and what is illusion in this sci-fi thriller.

8 'Diary of a Wimpy Kid: Dog Days' In the third movie based on Jeff Kinney's popular books of the same name, Zachary Gordon reprises his role as Greg Heffley.

9 'The Watch' A group of suburban dads band together to form a neighborhood watch. But an alien invasion forces them to go from protecting the neighborhood to protecting the world.

10 'Step Up Revolution' The next installment in the "Step Up" series places Emily in the heart of Miami, where she falls in love with a fellow dancer.

'If Not Now, When?'

Linkin Park and Incubus team up for the first time
Bands talk their musical style, rope swings and East Coast weed

It's a two-for-the-price-of-one deal for ticket-holders to this year's Honda Civic Tour, headlined by Linkin Park and Incubus. After reaching major success in the early aughts, the two groups are still making music and reaching milestones — Linkin Park's fifth studio album, "Living Things," debuted at No. 1, and Incubus, whose most recent album is last year's "If Not Now, When?" just celebrated their 20th anniversary. Linkin Park frontman Chester Bennington and Incubus singer Brandon Boyd offer insight into their joint venture.

JAMES MINCHIN

▶ Linkin Park and Incubus play tomorrow at the Susquehanna Bank Center in Camden, N.J. Visit www.ticketmaster.com to go.

Past acts on this tour have been more pop-oriented. What can fans expect from this year's?
Chester Bennington: I think the most special thing about this tour is the fact that you have two headlining bands singing together on one bill, which typically can be kind of hard to do.

"I think the most special thing about this tour is the fact that you have two headlining bands singing together on one bill. ... You never get to go see Bon Jovi and Kiss at the same time." CHESTER BENNINGTON

... You never get to go see Bon Jovi and Kiss at the same time.
You're both West Coast bands. What do you like most about performing on the East Coast?
Brandon Boyd: When you play these large places, some of the diversity gets lost in these venues because a lot of them are built by the same architects. ... And what really distinguishes them is the people that come. ... Sometimes you can catch accents in the crowds. People in between songs are yelling, like, "You suck" or "I love you, man," or on the East Coast it's "Play that f—ing song, man." And the East Coast has got a little bit more grit to it, perhaps. And on the West Coast you just smell pot a little bit more.
CB: Well, that's because the weed on the East Coast smells like cigarettes. [Laughs] There are other subtle differences that make every crowd a little different. I am used to playing the East Coast primarily in win-

Staying rooted

As you each grow older, how do you connect to the style of music that is very rooted in a much younger you?

BB: Actually, it's been a real struggle. Being so identified with a particular style and a particular time ... certain music reviewers will literally have not looked beyond Incubus' very first album, "S.C.I.E.N.C.E," which we wrote and recorded when we were just freshly out of high school. It came out in 1997. ... That's been a real challenge, to get people to take a second glance at an established artist.

CB: I think that Incubus and Linkin Park share a lot of similarities in terms of when we became popular, in a time when selling tons of records was what people did, and the Internet wasn't really a strong force in the world. And then transitioning into a time where no one's buying records, and yet people are spending more money on music than any time before. Going through all that and getting older definitely shapes the way you think about business. But the things that inspire me are all the same kinds of things that inspired me when I was 15.

ter, so I never really get to enjoy being out in Boston because usually I'm inside, because there's like a two-inch glass sheet of ice on the building outside. ... I was talking with some of the guys in my crew and they're like, "We should do something like get a band-on-band soccer game." We always end up playing our label in Germany and playing a bunch of reporters from different publications in a soccer match, and we always beat them. So I think as the tour goes on, there are going to be a lot of opportunities for band and crew to get to know each other more.

BB: I know a river in Ohio that we can go to and go camping and jump off of a rope swing.

CB: That'd be great. Let's do it.

Hope for the dumped

Did your last date end in radio silence — or some lame excuse you didn't believe? How to get some closure with the help of a carefully worded email

What went wrong

Top reasons for dumping:

- "Not ready for a relationship"
- "Lack of punctuality"
- "You're married"/ "Bad hygiene" (tied)

Top methods for dumping:

- "No phone call"
- "Didn't return my call"
- "Text message/e-mail breakup"

— Data was collected from 500 anonymous, random users on Wotwentwrong.com

THINKSTOCK

▶ Wotwentwrong.com helps those who have been dumped get some answers.

Despite the long list of ways a person can be dumped, it's often the case that no actual breakup happens at all. Ending a relationship with unreturned phone calls or unanswered texts is sadly the norm.

Audrey Melnik, CEO of Wotwentwrong.com, had enough of that. Fed up with the anguish she and her friends experienced when they were kicked to the curb with no explanation, she was determined to find a productive and socially acceptable method of getting feedback from those who had ended things. The result is a website that helps the dumped compose what Melnik describes as a "nonchalant, not clingy" e-mail that politely asks the one who did the dumping for full disclosure.

"The tone that I wanted to set pretty much throughout all of it is: 'I'm not trying to get back together with you; I just want to know so I can not make that mistake in the future and improve the next time,'" Melnik explains.

Users can select from a number of tones — from flippant to flattering, philosophical to sincere — from which to compose their e-mail to the ex-mate from whom they're seeking an answer. The site provides text like, "Since I haven't heard from you for a while, I'm assuming things have changed. It would really be great if you could give me some feedback on what went wrong."

Customize the message and it gets sent off to the object of your unrequited affection. Melnick has been pleased with the results. Not only has the site helped many daters learn more about their own habits, but anonymously aggregated user information provides statistics that will help anyone learn more about dating behavior.

"One of the key things that we're discovering is that there are two different facets: Either there are certain things that you can learn that you are doing that you can change, or there are certain things about you or your lifestyle that aren't things you can change, so it just means you should stop worrying about it," Melnick says. "Sometimes it's just about finding out that it's not about you, and that can make you feel better."

There's a full moon on the right

RE: "NO WAKE-UP ALARM NEEDED, THANKS" (METRO, AUG. 15)
Mr. Tordoff shows why the left wing does have contempt for people who misconstrue them as "lunatics" with "delusional worldviews" by espousing the right-wing mantra of blowharding with rhetorical right hooks while offering no solutions, a la Fox News and the GOP, respectively. Leftists listen to our economists (stimulus spend), our best scientific minds (climate change) and our religious leaders (take care of the less fortunate). What is lunacy is governing by recklessly and viciously feeding on racism induced by hyperbole, such as "the illegals are taking our jobs." The new, extreme right-wing ideology is like a pathogenic virus, killing its host from the inside out — just not fast enough.
COREY SAGENICH, VIA E-MAIL

Taking shelter from the (tax) storm

RE: "AMERICANS NEED TO JUMP OFF THE WAGON" (METRO, AUG. 15)
Mr. Mclaughlan clearly has it all wrong. Obama is not a socialist; he is a corporate lackey, just like the Republicans are. The top 1 percent have $32 trillion in off-shore accounts so as to evade taxation, yet they are paying the lowest taxes ever. The banks and motor car companies got bailed out, to the tune of $13 trillion, using taxpayers' money (that is socialist and that is definitely riding the handouts bandwagon). Republicans claim to be champions of free markets and capitalism, yet they won't let the banks and the rich hedge-funders fail, while small business owners are left to their own devices. That's corporate socialism.
GARY LYON, VIA E-MAIL

Rich, richer and Sir Richard Branson

I am quite looking forward to Sir Richard Branson's upcoming edition of Metro. It will be a welcome change to hear from a real success story, versus a fake one like a certain GOP candidate.
JOSEPH CONNELL, VIA E-MAIL

Never let the facts get in the way ...

Guess all the Fox News viewers missed the two studies done last spring that showed that people who watched Fox News were the most misinformed on basic facts of all the study participants. Here are some facts for you: Greece can't control its currency, but the U.S. can, and tax cheating by the rich in Greece has been rampant for decades. Also, we can add the oil industry to the list of those that don't pull their weight and cut off their subsidies.
KATHY KOURIAN, VIA E-MAIL

The sick man of Europe — and US

RE: "OBAMA'S CAP HAS GOT MORE FEATHERS" (METRO, AUG. 15) Mr. Dourdis assigns praise to Mr. Obama for "creating" jobs. Get the facts right, please. The "jobs" created are based on the changing unemployment numbers, which may be lower when people do not get free checks and therefore are not being counted as part of those looking for work. The jobs he has created are in big government. Socialism is failing in Europe, so why bring it here?

Affair to remember for Sixers' new centerpiece

Bynum introduced to masses in surreal atmosphere in Old City ◗ Center provides renewed energy to once-neglected fan base ◗ Embraces Philadelphia as new face of proud franchise

When Josh Harris bought the Sixers, everyone told him Philadelphia wasn't a basketball town. Anyone that attended yesterday's surreal Andrew Bynum press conference would beg to differ.

As Bynum strolled into the National Constitution Center, the atmosphere ranged somewhere between high school pep rally and Beatlemania. The Sixers' dance squad and Flight Team were there. Fans chanted "An-Drew By-Num" and "Beat L.A."

All that was missing was teenage girls crying at the mere sight of the 7-foot Sixers' savior. Even Bynum, who has spent the last seven years doing some wild things in Los Angeles, seemed stunned by his reception.

"I actually have never seen anything like this," he said. "It makes me super excited. Hopefully they can match my energy and keep me going."

The Sixers' fan base hasn't been this energized since the Allen Iverson-led 2001 run to the finals. There was more energy inside the Constitution Center on a Wednesday in August than there was in the Wells Fargo Center at any point in the last 10 seasons. Bynum was joined by the team's other acquisition, guard Jason Richardson.

"There's more people at this press conference than were at the first game I played probably," said Doug Collins, the Sixers' No. 1 pick in 1973. "It meant a lot to 'Drew and J-Rich to walk out here today, to this kind of reception from the Philadelphia fans."

It's yet another reason the Sixers emerged as perhaps the biggest winners in last week's blockbuster four-team trade. By ridding themselves of fan scapegoat Andre Iguodala — and by adding the league's second-best center — they changed their perception around the city in one fell swoop.

At one point, a fan yelled, "We love you Andrew!" With a wide smile, the big man said, "Thank you."

Love is back in the air between professional basketball and Philadelphia.

Doc, Phils can't sweep Marlins

The Phillies fell to the Marlins 9-2 yesterday after taking the first two games of the series in Florida.

Roy Halladay (6-7) was solid, giving up three runs on six hits in seven innings, but the bullpen allowed six runs and the Phils couldn't come back.

Ty Wigginton was the only one to get any offense going for the Phillies. He had a home run and drove in both of the team's runs.

Bynum's health not a concern; owner could empty bank

Andrew Bynum has been a Sixer for less than a week. He already feels like he's home.

Bynum, who is entering the final year of his contract, faced questions yesterday about his plans for the future.

"To be honest, man, my first experience here has been so great I'm really leaning toward making this my home," Bynum said, inciting deafening cheers from the fans.

Prior to last season, Bynum was a knee injury waiting to happen. Between 2007-08 and 2010-11, he missed 31 games per season while undergoing separate surgeries on each knee. It wasn't until last season that he finally sustained health for a full season.

But that didn't stop owner Josh Harris from jokingly asking Bynum, "Where do I sign?" Team trainer Kevin Johnson took Bynum for X-rays and an MRI Tuesday, and he gave the 7-footer a clean bill of health. In fact, they appear happy that Bynum will head to Germany in early September to undergo a non-invasive procedure called Orthokine/Regenokine. It involves blood-spinning procedures and produced spectacular results last season for Bynum's former Lakers teammate, Kobe Bryant.

And the Sixers are prepared to empty the bank for Bynum. They can offer him a three-year, $60 million contract during the season and then a five-year, $100 million deal if he hits free agency.

Bounce passes

Here are few notes from yesterday relating to Sixers coach Doug Collins:

- A team source said that Doug Collins' team option has been picked up for the full two years, locking him in through the 2013-14 season.
- Collins on possibly succeeding Coach K as coach of USA Basketball in 2016: "If my name would get in the mix, that would be great. When I'm there watching USA basketball, it runs deep for me. It's very important."

▶ Bynum, posing with Sixers owner Josh Harris and new teammate Jason Richardson, is hoping the franchise shows him the money before he hits free agency after this season.

TURNING FLIERS INTO PURE GOLD

Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not waste picks late in fantasy drafts.

After we've established our starters and prime bench, the draft is far from over. We can still mine the field for lottery tickets. The qualities to look for in these "fliers" are talent, that they are on an explosive offense or are older players still leading depth charts:

Pick up the receiver

Oftentimes, the best fliers are wideouts. That's because most teams use at least three of them every Sunday and guys can come from way off the radar — like Jordy Nelson and Victor Cruz last season.

This year, it's worth rolling the dice on the young studs in elite passing offenses. Brandon LaFell is locked into the No. 2 job in Carolina. The Packers won't be able to keep Randall Cobb's raw talent off the field. Titus Young is tearing the cover off Lions camp and Kendall Wright is poised to take advantage of Kenny Britt's various issues.

Depth and trade bait

At other positions, we're far less likely to turn our late-round lottery tickets into gold. But we can build our depth for bye weeks and develop trade assets. A good example of that would be taking a flier on the rocket-armed and fleet-footed Jake Locker. He's not our QB1, but he'll be a valuable piece.

At tight end, second-year man Kyle Rudolph has been the unquestioned star of Vikings camp. He's playing the "F" spot in the offense, the same position that tight end Aaron Hernandez plays in New England. Coby Fleener is getting all the hype in Indy, but fellow rookie Dwayne Allen is the every-down guy.

Running backs are so valuable in fantasy that few ever get to the flier range. Once everyone realizes Evan Royster is the starter in Washington, he'll scream up rankings.

Kyle Rudolph is turning heads at Vikings camp. He's definitely worth a flier.

NFL news

Witten woe

Jason Witten hasn't missed a game since 2003. That streak is now jeopardy after he damaged his spleen on Monday night. Even if Witten makes it back for Week 1, he's wearing down at age 30. Aaron Hernandez, Jermichael Finley and Fred Davis are better tight ends.

4.9

Yards per carry for Kevin Smith last season. Now that Jahvid Best (concussions) is headed for the PUP list, Smith is locked in as the feature back.

Wasted fliers

Ronnie Brown

RB, Chargers
Ryan Mathews (clavicle) is only expected to miss one or two games and Brown has nothing left in the tank.

Danny Amendola

WR, Rams
The Rams are going to a run-heavy offense and Amendola has no after-the-catch skills. Avoid all wideouts in STL.

Top MLB pickups

1 Grant Balfour, RP, OAK — Ryan Cook lost the strike zone and lost his job. Balfour has the closer's gig and is humming along for a team that plays plenty of close games.

2 Manny Machado, SS, BAL — The No. 3 overall pick in the 2010 draft smacked three homers and drove in seven runs in his first five big-league games. The 20-year-old is for real.
